FINE PRINT FOR TREASURY BILLS AND NOTES

The Treasury Department follows a pattern of securities offerings. However, the Secretary of the Treasury reserves the right to modify the terms and conditions of new securities, and to depart from the customary pattern of securities offerings at any time. Consult the official offering announcement for the exact terms and conditions which apply to the sale of the new security which you request. If the maturity date of this security does not coincide with the issue date of the new security, the amount of the maturing security will be placed in a non-interest bearing account for a period not to exceed five (5) days.

YOU MAY NOT request noncompetitive reinvestment into any term of security where you are also bidding competitively through a commercial submitter or bidder in the same auction. There are several additional restrictions applicable to noncompetitive bidders that are provided in paragraph 356.12 (b)(2) of Treasury Circular No. 1-93 (31 CFR Part 356).

REMEMBER, Treasury bills are sold by auction. The price is determined after the auction. As a noncompetitive bidder, your price is equivalent to the highest discount rate at which bids were accepted.

REMEMBER, Treasury notes are sold by auction. The price is determined after the auction. As a noncompetitive bidder, your price is equivalent to the highest yield at which bids were accepted. You may be required to PAY accrued interest if the security pays interest income for a period prior to the issue date. You may also be required to pay a premium if the security is sold for a price above par. You will receive a notice and explanation of any monies due as a result of reinvestment.
